AMERICAN GUNS ARE ON REBEL'S ABODE

Extreme of Madness

Senator Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa, speaking at Chicago last week said:
"I would rather suffer the inequalities of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill for a thousand years than suffer disaster of the application of the Democratic theory of the tariff for a single month."
"For the man who wants to preserve fair and reasonable protection for the American wage-earner and the American producer," he continued, "and who, therefore, wants duties so adjusted that they will measure the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, and who in his heart abhors the Democratic policy of duties for revenue only, it would be the extreme of madness to vote for a Democratic candidate for Congress, who, if he be honest, will rob the country of its surest safeguard."

MINERS OF STATE OWE DEBT TO SCOTT

As Do Also Operators for His Fight for Them in the Senate.

"Every mine operator and every miner in West Virginia owes a debt of gratitude to Senator N. B. Scott for the passage of the bill creating a Bureau of Mines and Mining."

The above is the emphatic declaration of Dr. I. C. White, state geologist, and a man who has devoted as much time to the study of mine conditions as any man in the state. Continuing, Dr. White said:

"I was on the ground in Washington when the bill creating the Bureau of Mines and Mining passed the United States Senate. I had been there for some time in the interest of this measure, urging its passage as had been many others who were deeply interested in it, including a number of very prominent labor leaders. Senator Scott was the ranking member of the committee on Mines and Mining. Senator Dick, the chairman of the committee, was absent in New York City. We were unable to get any action from this committee at all on account of Dick's absence and finally appealed to Mr. Scott. He took the matter up, promptly called the committee in absence of Dick, and in spite of his protest secured a favorable report. Then he personally piloted the bill through the Senate. He gave many days of his time to this work, meeting objections from every point, and his personal diplomacy and popularity with various senators enabled him to overcome difficulties which under other conditions would have been unsurmountable. Senator Elkins, who had charge of the railroad bill, also co-operated with Mr. Scott, and it was through Mr. Scott's intervention with Senator Elkins at one point that it was possible to have the railroad bill laid aside and the bill creating a Bureau of Mines and Mining taken up. I repeat it as emphatically as I can make it that every mine operator and every miner in the state of West Virginia owes to Senator Scott a debt of gratitude for this special measure. It is only one of the many evidences that he has given of his activity in looking after the interests of West Virginia and his ability to secure results at Washington. It would be a misfortune to this state if we would lose his services in the United States Senate."

The Bureau of Mines and Mining continued Dr. White, "is one of the wisest and most progressive undertakings to which the United States government has been committed. It proposed to study mining conditions, to establish safe and practical rules of mine operation, to establish a number of rescue stations, equipped for mine rescues. One of these stations is likely to be located in West Virginia."

THE FAITH THAT IS IN HIM

Editors of the Telegram:

I am going to vote the Republican ticket straight next Tuesday, because I believe in the capacity of that party to give the people the best government in nation and state. This conviction is founded on forty-six years of successful Republican administration. In the four years, in a half century the Republican party was out of power, the Democratic party proved its incapacity and inability to govern. The history of the Republican party and the history of the United States of America for fifty years are one and inseparable.

I am going to vote the Republican ticket because I am an intelligent man, and Republican principles and policies appeal favorably to my intelligence.

I am going to vote the Republican ticket because I am a progressive man, and the Republican party is a progressive party. In nation and state its record speaks Progress.

I am going to vote for Charles E. Carrigan for congressman because he represents the principles I believe in, and will stand loyally to enforce and advance them. His personality does not enter into the consideration at all with me.

I am going to vote for Birk S. Stathers for state senator because he will vote for a Republican for United States senator; because he will vote to reapportion and redistrict the state in accord with his party's ideas; because he will not vote to disfranchise colored men because of their color and while men because of their want of education or poverty. I will not vote for any man for any office who would strike the party policies in which I believe or the great party organization to which I belong. Again, the personal equation does not enter in with me.

I am going to vote for Lafayette C. Crile and Frederick W. Cunningham for the House of Delegates because they, too, will vote to send a Republican to the United States Senate; because, they, too, will vote to reapportion and redistrict the state as Republicans think it should be done; because they, too, will vote against disfranchising any man who has a right under the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of West Virginia, to cast a vote and to have it counted and recorded, no matter if he be white or black skinned, college-bred or untutored; because they are reliable, honest and upright citizens and Republicans firm in the faith. And the personal equation does not influence me in their case, either.

These are candidates for offices that directly affect the further development of the governmental principles in which I believe, and, also, directly affect the success of the party organization to which I belong.

I am going to vote for the Republican candidates for the lesser offices to be filled this year because they are equally as good and competent men as their opponents. All things being equal I prefer my party's men.

I am going to vote the Republican ticket straight this year because I owe it to my party to do so, and I owe it to myself for this reason: I have heretofore voted for many Democrats, and I never did so without having occasion afterward to regret it. From now on I faithfully promise never to get too good for my party. The Republican party is my party and it is good enough for me.

Yours for a straight ticket.

LOYAL REPUBLICAN.

SENATOR ELKINS IS GETTING WELL

According to News Received at His Office in City of Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—News comes to the office of Senator Elkins in Washington of the steady improvement of the senator. It is admitted here that he was a very sick man even critically ill, and intimations that his illness was merely a ruse to prevent his participation in the election are vigorously denied. That he will be able to attend the Senate at the coming session is still doubtful, although his friends assert that they are hopeful of seeing him in his accustomed seat when the gavel falls.

Senator Elkins is one of the oldest members of the Senate in point of service. But nine senators have served longer than he and several of them will not be in the Senate after the end of their present terms the third of next March. Of those who have served longer than Senator Elkins, Hale and Aldrich have voluntarily retired from the Senate, to take effect March 3, 1911. Senator Burrows was defeated for a re-nomination, while Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Clark, of Wyoming, are candidates for re-election. The only senators certain to be in the Senate after next March, who have served longer in that body than Senator Elkins, are Frye, Cullom, Callinger and Perkins. If Senators Lodge and Clark are re-elected they will make but six who exceed Senator Elkins in length of continuous service. Several other senators have been in as long as Elkins. They are Bacon, Martin, Nelson, Tillman and Warren.

Tremendous Ovation is Given the Secretary of State at Lumberport.

BIG CROWD PRESENT

Eloquent Speeches Create Unlimited Enthusiasm for Republican Ticket.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic political meetings ever held at Lumberport was the Thursday night meeting there by Republicans. The opera house was filled with more than 200 enthusiastic auditors, and the speakers were Stuart F. Reed, West Virginia's eloquent and able secretary of state, and attorney William H. Taylor, of this city. Dr. L. C. Oyler, president.

Secretary Reed eloquently spoke of national and state issues and convincingly showed his audience that the Republican party is progressive, while the Democratic party is retrogressive. He showed that the state tax last year of five cents on the hundred dollars as assessed on all the real estate and personal property in Harrison county amounted to $6,390, and while this amount was sent to the state government, at Charleston, presumably to help run the state government, the state in turn sent back to Harrison county three times that amount for free schools, and this year the state tax would be still lower, the rate being only four and a half cents and the amount Harrison county would receive would be $19,744.

Mr. Reed pointed out that under the old system of taxation there was collected off the public service corporations taxes for county purposes to the amount of $5,051, which under the present system these corporations are required to pay county taxes amounting to $85,485. As a further evidence of the advantage of the new tax system to the people he showed that the valuations placed on the farms and homes of the people had increased three and a half times, while the amount levied against the corporations has been increased nine and one half times. Mentioning specific instances, he said that under the Democratic system of taxation all the express companies of the state were assessed at $12,000, but now their valuations have been fixed at $400,000, or increased over forty-eight times.

Mr. Reed traced the splendid legislation enacted by the Republican party in West Virginia relative to pure food regulations, shorter hours for labor, two-cent fares on railroads, employees safety act and many other movements in the interest of the people, which were passed to the utmost by the railroads and corporations, showing conclusively that the whole trend of Republican legislation was in the interest of the common people.

Every Democratic charge of extravagance was squarely met by Mr. Reed and successfully refuted. Discussing the charge in reference to multiplied offices and increased salaries, Mr. Reed pointed out where by one piece of Republican legislation 129 offices were abolished and the control of twenty-one state institutions placed under the management of a board composed of but

Caught Red-Handed in the Act as Shown by Mr. Talkington.

Either not desiring to publish the proceedings of the Central Trades Council or not being experienced enough to cover the news, the Clarksburg Exponent indicates, that a statement issued by that body and published in the Telegram yesterday is a fake.

In reply to what the Exponent says William R. Talkington, secretary of the Central Trades Council, authorized the following statement:

There was a meeting of the Central Trades Council as stated. Two men there and ought to know. The Central Trades Council authorized me as its secretary to issue the statement referred to.

Signed: W. R. TALKINGTON, Secretary of the Central Trades Council of Clarksburg.
